Forecast For Southwest England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Wednesday 21 Apr 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Turning breezy with a rural frost tonight. Sunny tomorrow.

This Evening and Tonight:
Any showers will clear through the evening, soon followed by any lingering cloud clearing too. Turning breezy in what will be quite a cold night with rural frosts likely, especially in northern and eastern areas. Minimum temperature -1 deg C (30 deg F).

Thursday:
Fine and dry throughout, with mostly sunny skies. However, feeling cooler along the south coast with brisk winds and some cloud cover. In particular, strong winds developing for southwest Cornwall. Maximum temperature 16 deg C (61 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Dry and occasionally cloudy into the weekend. Rather warm but feeling cooler in the breeze. Strong winds in the west and risks of gales in exposed locations, gradually easing later.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.